2 SALDANA V. GLENHAVEN HEALTHCARE

Before: Ryan D. Nelson and Lawrence VanDyke, Circuit Judges, and Karen E. Schreier,* District Judge.

Opinion by Judge Schreier

SUMMARY

Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction

The panel affirmed the district court's order remanding a removed case to state court for lack of federal subject matter jurisdiction.

Relatives of Ricardo Saldana, who allegedly died from COVID-19 at Glenhaven Healthcare nursing home, sued Glenhaven and other defendants in California state court, alleging state-law causes of action based on the allegation that Glenhaven failed to adequately protect Saldana. Glenhaven removed the case to federal court.

Affirming the district court's order granting plaintiffs' motion to remand the case to state court, the panel rejected Glenhaven's argument that the district court had three grounds for federal jurisdiction. First, the panel held that the district court lacked jurisdiction under the federal officer removal statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1442, because Glenhaven did not act under a federal officer or agency's directions when it complied with mandatory directives to nursing homes from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the Department of Health and Human Services. Glenhaven's status as a critical infrastructure entity did not establish that it acted as a federal officer or agency, or that it carried out a government duty.

Second, the panel held that plaintiffs' claims were not completely preempted by the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness Act, which provides immunity from suit when the HHS Secretary determines that a threat to health constitutes a public health emergency, but provides an exception to this immunity for an exclusive federal cause of action for willful misconduct. In March 2020, the Secretary issued a declaration under the PREP Act "to provide liability immunity for activities related to medical countermeasures against COVID-19." The panel held that the HHS Office of General Counsel's Advisory Opinion on complete preemption was not entitled to Chevron deference because it was an opinion on federal court jurisdiction. Instead, the panel applied the two-part test set forth in City of Oakland v. BP PLC, 969 F.3d 895 (9th Cir. 2020). The panel concluded that in enacting the PREP Act, Congress did not intend to displace the non-willful misconduct claims brought by plaintiffs related to the public health emergency, nor did it provide substitute causes of action for plaintiffs' claims. Thus, the federal statutory scheme was not so comprehensive that it entirely supplanted state law causes of action.

Third, the panel held that the district court did not have jurisdiction under the embedded federal question doctrine, under which federal jurisdiction over a state law claim will lie if a federal issue is necessarily raised, actually disputed, substantial, and capable of resolution in federal court without disrupting the federal-state balance approved by Congress.

SCHREIER, District Judge:

Glenhaven Healthcare LLC, Caravan Operations Corp., Matthew Karp, and Benjamin Karp (collectively, Glenhaven) appeal the district court's order remanding this case to state court for lack of federal subject matter jurisdiction. We have jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1447(d), and affirm.¹

I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

Ricardo Saldana was a resident of Glenhaven Healthcare nursing home from 2014 to 2020. Saldana died at the Glenhaven nursing home on April 13, 2020, allegedly from COVID-19. In June 2020, four of Saldana's relatives, Jackie Saldana, Celia Saldana, Ricardo Saldana, Jr., and Maria Saldana (the Saldanas), sued Glenhaven in California Superior Court for Los Angeles County. The Saldanas allege that Glenhaven failed to adequately protect Ricardo Saldana from the COVID-19 virus. The complaint states four state-law causes of action: elder abuse, willful misconduct, custodial negligence, and wrongful death.

Glenhaven removed the case to the United States District Court for the Central District of California in June 2020, and the Saldanas moved to remand the case to state court. The district court found that it did not have subject matter jurisdiction to hear the case and granted the Saldanas' motion to remand. Glenhaven appeals, arguing that the district court has three independent grounds for federal jurisdiction: federal officer removal, complete preemption of state law, and the presence of an imbedded federal question. We agree with the district court and affirm.

II. STANDARD OF REVIEW

We review questions of statutory construction and subject matter jurisdiction de novo. City of Oakland v. BP PLC, 969 F.3d 895, 903 (9th Cir. 2020). When the federal officer removal statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1442, is one ground for removal, § 1447(d) permits appellate review of a district court’s entire remand order. BP P.L.C. v. Mayor of Balt., 141 S. Ct. 1532, 1538 (2021). “If at any time before final judgment it appears that the district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, the case shall be remanded.” 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).

III. DISCUSSION

A. Federal Officer Removal

1. Legal Standard

Under 28 U.S.C. § 1442(a)(1), the federal officer removal statute, an action commenced in state court may be removed to federal court when it is “against or directed to . . . : [t]he United States or any agency thereof or any officer (or any person acting under that officer) of the United States or of any agency thereof, in an official or individual capacity, for or relating to any act under color of such office” The “basic purpose” of the statute “is to protect the Federal Government from the interference with its operations that would ensue were a State able, for example, to arrest and bring to trial in a State court for an alleged offense against the law of the State, officers and agents of the Government acting within the scope of their authority.” Watson v. Philip Morris Cos., Inc., 551 U.S. 142, 150 (2007) (cleaned up). The federal officer removal statute is to be “liberally construed,” but “a liberal construction nonetheless can find limits in [the statute’s] language, context, history, and purposes.” Id. at 147.

To remove a state court action under the federal officer removal statute, a defendant must establish that “(a) it is a person within the meaning of the statute; (b) there is a causal nexus between its actions, taken pursuant to a federal officer’s directions, and plaintiff’s claims; and (c) it can assert a colorable federal defense.” Stirling v. Minasian, 955 F.3d 795, 800 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Fidelitad, Inc. v. Insitu, Inc., 904 F.3d 1095, 1099 (9th Cir. 2018)). Here, the parties do not dispute that each defendant is a “person” under the statute. See 1 U.S.C. § 1 (“person” includes “corporations, companies, associations, firms, partnerships . . . as well as individuals”). Defendants seeking removal “still bear the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the colorable federal defense and causal nexus requirements for removal jurisdiction are factually supported.” Lake v. Ohana Mil. Cmty., LLC, 14 F.4th 993, 1000 (9th Cir. 2021) (cleaned up).

2. Whether Glenhaven Acted Under a Federal Officer’s Directions

To determine whether there was a causal nexus between Glenhaven’s actions and the Saldanas’ claims, the court first considers whether Glenhaven’s actions were taken “pursuant to a federal officer’s directions,” Stirling, 955 F.3d at 800, or while “acting under that officer.” 28 U.S.C. § 1442(a)(1). A person or entity who acts under a federal officer or agency is one “‘who lawfully assist[s]’ a federal officer ‘in the performance of his official duty’” and is “authorized to act with or for [federal officers or agents] in affirmatively executing duties under . . . federal law.” Watson, 551 U.S. at 143 (cleaned up). The relationship between a federal officer or agency and a person or entity “acting under” the officer or agency “typically involves subjection, guidance, or control.” Id. at 152. But “simply complying” with a law or regulation is not enough to “bring a private person within the scope of the statute.” Id. In Watson the Supreme Court stated:

A private firm’s compliance (or noncompliance) with federal laws, rules, and regulations does not by itself fall within the scope of the statutory phrase “acting under” a federal “official.” And that is so even if the regulation is highly detailed and even if the private firm’s activities are highly supervised and monitored.

Id. at 153. “The upshot is that a highly regulated firm cannot find a statutory basis for removal in the fact of federal regulation alone.” Id.

Glenhaven argues that the federal government “conscript[ed] . . . private entities like Glenhaven to join in the fight [against COVID-19] through detailed and specific mandatory directives to nursing homes on the use and allocation of PPE, the administration of COVID-19 testing, intervention protocols, and virtually every other aspect of the operations of nursing homes during the pandemic.” Though it acknowledges that compliance with federal laws, regulations, and rules does not “by itself” bring a defendant under the federal officer removal statute, Glenhaven claims that the “unprecedented[ed] circumstances” of COVID-19 resulted in federal directives and operational control amounting to more than compliance with government regulations.

Glenhaven points to memoranda it received from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) during the COVID-19 pandemic to show that the “federal government and its agencies . . . became hyper-involved in the operational activities of nursing facilities in response to the pandemic.” But the agency communications Glenhaven relies on show nothing more than regulations and recommendations for nursing homes, covering topics such as COVID-19 testing, use and distribution of personal protective equipment, and best practices to reduce transmission within congregate living environments. For example, one CMS memo identifies what healthcare staff “should” do in response to the pandemic, and it states what CMS “expects,” “encourages,” “advise[s],” and “recommend[s].” Similarly, a CDC communication cited by Glenhaven identifies “recommendations” and steps that healthcare centers “should” take. Another memorandum published by the California Department of Public Health states that the agency “ensure[s] compliance with state licensing laws and federal certification regulations” on behalf of CMS. Licensing and Certification Program, Cal. Dep’t of Pub. Health (Dec. 17, 2020), <https://www.cdph.ca.gov/Programs/CHCQ/LCP/Pages/LandCProgramHome.aspx>. Without more than government regulations and recommendations, Glenhaven has failed to establish that it was “acting under” a federal official, and it has not identified a duty of the federal government that it performed.

Glenhaven also claims that, as a nursing home, its designation as part of the national critical infrastructure necessarily means that it acted on behalf of a federal official or that it carried out a government duty. The Saldanas do not dispute that nursing homes, including Glenhaven, are part of the nation's critical infrastructure. Glenhaven relies on a memorandum from the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) stating that the list of critical infrastructure workers was developed as "guidance" to "help state and local jurisdictions and the private sector identify and manage their essential workforce while responding to COVID-19." CISA Releases Guidance on Essential Critical Infrastructure Workers During COVID-19, Cybersecurity & Infrastructure Sec. Agency (Oct. 25, 2021), <https://www.cisa.gov/news/2020/03/19/cisa-release-s-guidance-essential-critical-infrastructure-workers-during-covid-19>. Notably, the memorandum also states that the national critical infrastructure list "does not impose any mandates on state or local jurisdictions or private companies," such as Glenhaven. Id.

"It cannot be that the federal government's mere designation of an industry as important—or even critical—is sufficient to federalize an entity's operations and confer federal jurisdiction." Buljic v. Tyson Foods, Inc., 22 F.4th 730, 740 (8th Cir. 2021); see also Maglioli v. All. HC Holdings LLC, 16 F.4th 393, 406 (3d Cir. 2021). Thus, Glenhaven's status as a critical infrastructure entity does not establish that it acted under a federal officer or agency, or that it carried out a government duty.

Glenhaven has failed to substantiate its claims that it was conscripted to assist a federal officer or agency in performance of a government duty or that it was authorized to act for a federal officer. All that Glenhaven has demonstrated is that it operated as a private entity subject to government regulations, and that during the COVID-19 pandemic it received additional regulations and recommendations from federal agencies. Thus, Glenhaven was not “acting under” a federal officer or agency as contemplated by the federal officer removal statute. And because Glenhaven did not act under a federal officer, there is no causal nexus that allows removal under 28 U.S.C. § 1442.

B. Preemption Under the PREP Act

1. Legal Standard

Glenhaven argues that this case was properly removed to federal court because the Saldanas’ claims are completely preempted by the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness (PREP) Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 247d-6d, 247d-6e. “Complete preemption is ‘really a jurisdictional rather than a preemption doctrine, as it confers exclusive federal jurisdiction in certain instances where Congress intended the scope of a federal law to be so broad as to entirely replace any state-law claim.’” Dennis v. Hart, 724 F.3d 1249, 1254 (9th Cir. 2013) (emphasis added) (quoting Marin Gen. Hosp. v. Modesto & Empire Traction Co., 581 F.3d 941, 945 (9th Cir. 2009)). Put another way, “[c]omplete preemption . . . applies only where a federal statutory scheme is so comprehensive that it entirely supplants state law causes of action.” Retail Prop. Tr. v. United Bhd. of Carpenters & Joiners of Am., 768 F.3d 938, 947 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting Dennis, 724 F.3d at 1254). To determine whether a claim is completely preempted, the court asks whether Congress “(1) intended to displace a state-law cause of action, and (2) provided a substitute cause of action.” City of Oakland, 969 F.3d at 906 (citing Hansen v. Grp. Health Coop., 902 F.3d 1051, 1057 (9th Cir. 2018)). Complete preemption is “rare.” Hansen, 902 F.3d at 1057 (quoting Retail Prop. Tr., 768 F.3d at 947). The Supreme Court has identified only three complete preemption statutes: § 301 of the Labor Management Relations Act, § 502(a) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA), and §§ 85 and 86 of the National Bank Act. City of Oakland, 969 F.3d at 905–06.

Complete preemption is an exception to the well-pleaded complaint rule. Id. at 905. Under the well-pleaded complaint rule, a civil action arises under federal law for purposes of federal question jurisdiction when a federal question appears on the face of the complaint. Id. at 903 (citing Caterpillar Inc. v. Williams, 482 U.S. 386, 392 (1987)). Under the rule, removal must be based on the plaintiff’s claims and cannot be based on a defendant’s federal defense. Id. at 903–04. But the exception for complete preemption, the “artful-pleading doctrine[,] . . . allows removal where federal law completely preempts a plaintiff’s state-law claim.” Id. at 905 (quoting Rivet v. Regions Bank of La., 522 U.S. 470, 475 (1998)).

2. The PREP Act

Passed by Congress in 2005, the PREP Act provides that “a covered person shall be immune from suit and liability under Federal and State law with respect to all claims for loss caused by, arising out of, relating to, or resulting from the administration to or the use by an individual of a covered countermeasure” 42 U.S.C. § 247d-6d(a)(1). Both “covered countermeasure” and “covered person” are terms defined in the Act. See § 247d-6d(i)(1)–(2). The PREP Act is invoked when “the [HHS] Secretary makes a determination that a disease or other health condition or other threat to health constitutes a public health emergency, or that there is a credible risk that the disease, condition, or threat may in the future constitute such an emergency” § 247d-6d(b)(1). The Secretary “controls the scope of immunity through the declaration and amendments, within the confines of the PREP Act.” Maglioli, 16 F.4th at 401.

The Secretary’s declaration “may specify[] the manufacture, testing, development, distribution, administration, or use of one or more covered countermeasures.” § 247d-6d(b)(1). The PREP Act created the Covered Countermeasure Process Fund to compensate “eligible individuals for covered injuries directly caused by the administration or use of a covered countermeasure pursuant to such declaration” § 247d-6e(a).

Section 247d-6d(d)(1) provides that “the sole exception to the immunity from suit and liability of covered persons . . . shall be for an exclusive Federal cause of action against a covered person for death or serious physical injury proximately caused by willful misconduct . . . by such covered person.” Such an action “shall be filed and maintained only in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.” § 247d-6d(e)(1). The term “willful misconduct” is defined in the Act. § 247d-6d(c)(1)(A). An individual may not bring a suit under § 247d-6d(d)(1) unless the individual has exhausted the remedies available under § 247d-6e(a), the Covered Countermeasure Process Fund. § 247d-6e(d)(1).

In March 2020, the Secretary issued a declaration under the PREP Act “to provide liability immunity for activities related to medical countermeasures against COVID-19.” Declaration Under the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness Act for Medical Countermeasures Against COVID-19, 85 Fed. Reg. 15,198, 15,198 (Mar. 17, 2020). The declaration provided immunity for covered persons for the use of covered measures, including “any antiviral, any other drug, any biologic, any diagnostic, any other device, or any vaccine, used to treat, diagnose, cure, prevent, or mitigate COVID-19” Id. at 15,202. The Secretary has issued subsequent amended declarations throughout the pandemic. See Seventh Amendment to Declaration Under the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness Act for Medical Countermeasures Against COVID-19, 86 Fed. Reg. 14,462 (Mar. 16, 2021).

3. Whether the PREP Act is a Complete Preemption Statute

Glenhaven’s complete preemption argument relies on the HHS Secretary’s and the HHS Office of General Counsel’s respective conclusions that the PREP Act is a complete preemption statute. Fifth Amendment to the Declaration Under the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness Act for Medical Countermeasures Against COVID-19, 86 Fed. Reg. 7874 (Feb. 2, 2021); Dep’t Health & Hum. Servs., General Counsel Advisory Opinion 21-01 (Jan. 8, 2021). But “[c]omplete preemption is really a jurisdictional rather than a preemption doctrine[.]” Dennis, 724 F.3d at 1254 (internal quotation omitted). And an agency’s opinion on federal court jurisdiction is not entitled to Chevron deference. Dandino, Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Transp., 729 F.3d 917, 920 n.1 (9th Cir. 2013). Thus, Glenhaven’s reliance on the Advisory Opinion is misplaced and not a sufficient basis to establish complete preemption and thus federal jurisdiction.

Instead of deferring to an opinion of the Office of General Counsel, this court applies the two-part test articulated in City of Oakland: (1) did Congress intend to displace a state-law cause of action and (2) did Congress provide a substitute cause of action? 969 F.3d at 906. Turning to the statute’s text, the PREP Act states that it provides immunity under certain conditions for “covered person[s]” who use “covered countermeasure[s].” 42 U.S.C. § 247d-6d(a)(1). Subsection (d) is the only subsection that explicitly states that there shall be an “exclusive Federal cause of action,” limited to claims against “covered persons” for “willful misconduct,” as the terms are defined in the Act. § 247d-6d(d). The provision of one specifically defined, exclusive federal cause of action undermines Glenhaven’s argument that Congress intended the Act to completely preempt all state-law claims related to the pandemic. The text of the statute shows that Congress intended a federal claim only for willful misconduct claims and not claims for negligence and recklessness. § 247d-6d(c)(1)(B). An administrative compensation fund, not an exclusive federal cause of action, provides the only redress for claims brought under the Act, other than those alleging “willful misconduct.” The PREP Act neither shows the intent of Congress to displace the non-willful misconduct claims brought by the Saldanas related to the public health emergency, nor does it provide substitute causes of action for their claims. Thus, under this court’s two-part test, the PREP Act is not a complete preemption statute.

Glenhaven argues that the PREP Act may preempt one of the Saldanas’ claims—the second cause of action under state law for willful misconduct. Whether the claim is preempted by the PREP Act turns on whether any of the conduct alleged in the complaint fits the statute’s definitions for such a claim. But finding that one claim may be preempted is different than finding that the “federal statutory scheme is so comprehensive that it entirely supplants state law causes of action,” such as the Saldanas’ other causes of action for elder abuse, custodial negligence, and wrongful death. Retail Prop. Tr., 768 F.3d at 947 (emphasis added) (quoting Dennis, 724 F.3d at 1254); see also Caterpillar, 482 U.S. at 393 (distinguishing between complete preemption and raising a federal defense); Toumajian v. Frailey, 135 F.3d 648, 654 (9th Cir. 1998) (distinguishing between complete preemption and “conflict preemption” of a particular claim). Thus, the district court's remand order for lack of federal subject matter jurisdiction based upon complete preemption was proper.

C. Embedded Federal Question

Glenhaven argues that the district court has jurisdiction under the embedded federal question doctrine. Under this doctrine, "federal jurisdiction over a state law claim will lie if a federal issue is (1) necessarily raised, (2) actually disputed, (3) substantial, and (4) capable of resolution in federal court without disrupting the federal-state balance approved by Congress." Gunn v. Minton, 568 U.S. 251, 258 (2013). The well-pleaded complaint rule applies when determining whether the embedded federal question doctrine applies. Cal. Shock Trauma Air Rescue v. State Comp. Ins. Fund, 636 F.3d 538, 542 (9th Cir. 2011).

Here, the Saldanas' complaint states four causes of action: elder abuse, willful misconduct, custodial negligence, and wrongful death. The claims in the complaint are raised under California law and do not raise questions of federal law on the face of the complaint. Glenhaven seeks to raise a federal defense under the PREP Act, but a federal defense is not a sufficient basis to find embedded federal question jurisdiction. Provincial Gov't of Marinduque v. Placer Dome, Inc., 582 F.3d 1083, 1090 (9th Cir. 2009).

Glenhaven argues that the Saldanas' willful misconduct claim raises a federal issue under the PREP Act. Glenhaven does not identify how a right or immunity created by the PREP Act must be an essential element of the willful misconduct claim as stated in the complaint. On its face, the issue is not a "substantial" part of the Saldanas' complaint because, according to the complaint, only some of the steps Glenhaven allegedly took, and did not take, may have involved a “covered person,” under the PREP Act. Thus, remand is proper because the complaint does not present an embedded federal question.

IV. CONCLUSION

Glenhaven did not act under a federal officer or carry out a federal duty when it provided care to Ricardo Saldana. The PREP Act does not completely preempt the Saldanas’ claims, and the possible preemption of one claim cannot be determined by this court or the district court. And there is no embedded federal question in the Saldanas’ complaint. Thus, the district court lacked subject matter jurisdiction, and the suit was properly remanded to state court.

AFFIRMED.

LICENSING AND CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Welcome to the Licensing and Certification Program

Our top priority is to protect patient safety and ensure quality care for all patients and residents of the more than 11,000 health care facilities we regulate in California. These include general acute care hospitals, home health agencies, hospices, skilled nursing facilities, and other facility types.

We ensure compliance with state licensing laws and federal certification regulations in our role as the state survey agency for the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services for which we certify facilities to receive Medicare and Medi-Cal reimbursements.

We also oversee the certification and/or licensing of four types of health-care professionals: nurse assistants, home health aides, hemodialysis technicians and nursing home administrators.

CISA RELEASES GUIDANCE ON ESSENTIAL CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE WORKERS DURING COVID-19

Original release date: March 19, 2020 | Last revised: October 25, 2021

WASHINGTON – Today, the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) released guidance to help state and local jurisdictions and the private sector identify and manage their essential workforce while responding to COVID-19.

As the Nation comes together to slow the spread of COVID-19, on March 16, the President issued updated Coronavirus Guidance for America. This guidance states that:

“If you work in a critical infrastructure industry, as defined by the Department of Homeland Security, such as healthcare services and pharmaceutical and food supply, you have a special responsibility to maintain your normal work schedule.”

CISA executes the Secretary of Homeland Security’s responsibilities as assigned under the Homeland Security Act of 2002 to provide strategic guidance, promote a national unity of effort, and coordinate the overall Federal effort to ensure the security and resilience of the Nation’s critical infrastructure. The list of Essential Critical Infrastructure Workers was developed in coordination with Federal agencies and the private sector as a guide to help decision-makers within communities understand how to ensure continuity of essential functions and critical workforce as they consider COVID-related restrictions in certain communities (e.g., shelter-in-place). The list can also inform critical infrastructure community decision-making to determine the sectors, sub sectors, segments, or critical functions that should continue normal operations, appropriately modified to account for Centers for Disease Control (CDC) workforce and customer protection guidance. These critical functions include, but are not limited to, systems that support healthcare personnel (e.g., doctors, nurses, laboratory personnel, etc.), the food industry (e.g., retail groceries and pharmacies), communication providers (e.g., operator, call centers, IT data centers), defense system enforcement, public works, and other essential operations. Workers who support these critical functions are necessary to keep critical systems and assets working. TLP:WHITE

“As the nation comes together to slow the spread of COVID-19, everyone has a role to play in protecting public health and safety. Many of the men and women who work across our nation’s critical infrastructure industries are hard at work keeping the lights on, water flowing from the tap, groceries on the shelves, among other countless essential services,” said Christopher Krebs, CISA Director. “This list is meant to provide additional guidance to state and local partners, as well as industry, building on the President’s statement that critical infrastructure industries have a special responsibility to keep normal operations. We’re providing recommendations for these partners as they carry out their mission to keep their communities safe, healthy, and resilient. And on behalf of CISA, we thank the brave men and women who continue these essential jobs in challenging times.”

The list of Essential Critical Infrastructure Workers was developed using existing data and analysis, including publicly available analysis done by the President’s National Infrastructure Advisory Council in 2007. The list does not impose any mandates on state or local jurisdictions or private companies.

CISA will use this list to support federal, state, local, tribal, and territorial government response to COVID-19. To view the full list of Essential Critical Infrastructure Workers and to learn more about our efforts, visit www.cisa.gov/coronavirus.

Petition for Panel Rehearing (Fed. R. App. P. 40; 9th Cir. R. 40-1)

Petition for Rehearing En Banc (Fed. R. App. P. 35; 9th Cir. R. 35-1 to -3)

(1) A. Purpose (Panel Rehearing):

- A party should seek panel rehearing only if one or more of the following grounds exist:
 - ▶ A material point of fact or law was overlooked in the decision;
 - ▶ A change in the law occurred after the case was submitted which appears to have been overlooked by the panel; or
 - ▶ An apparent conflict with another decision of the Court was not addressed in the opinion.
- Do not file a petition for panel rehearing merely to reargue the case.

B. Purpose (Rehearing En Banc)

- A party should seek en banc rehearing only if one or more of the following grounds exist:

- ▶ Consideration by the full Court is necessary to secure or maintain uniformity of the Court's decisions; or
- ▶ The proceeding involves a question of exceptional importance; or
- ▶ The opinion directly conflicts with an existing opinion by another court of appeals or the Supreme Court and substantially affects a rule of national application in which there is an overriding need for national uniformity.

(2) Deadlines for Filing:

- A petition for rehearing may be filed within 14 days after entry of judgment. Fed. R. App. P. 40(a)(1).
- If the United States or an agency or officer thereof is a party in a civil case, the time for filing a petition for rehearing is 45 days after entry of judgment. Fed. R. App. P. 40(a)(1).
- If the mandate has issued, the petition for rehearing should be accompanied by a motion to recall the mandate.
- See Advisory Note to 9th Cir. R. 40-1 (petitions must be received on the due date).
- An order to publish a previously unpublished memorandum disposition extends the time to file a petition for rehearing to 14 days after the date of the order of publication or, in all civil cases in which the United States or an agency or officer thereof is a party, 45 days after the date of the order of publication. 9th Cir. R. 40-2.

(3) Statement of Counsel

- A petition should contain an introduction stating that, in counsel's judgment, one or more of the situations described in the "purpose" section above exist. The points to be raised must be stated clearly.

(4) Form & Number of Copies (9th Cir. R. 40-1; Fed. R. App. P. 32(c)(2))

- The petition shall not exceed 15 pages unless it complies with the alternative length limitations of 4,200 words or 390 lines of text.
- The petition must be accompanied by a copy of the panel's decision being challenged.
- A response, when ordered by the Court, shall comply with the same length limitations as the petition.
- If a pro se litigant elects to file a form brief pursuant to Circuit Rule 28-1, a petition for panel rehearing or for rehearing en banc need not comply with Fed. R. App. P. 32.

- The petition or response must be accompanied by a Certificate of Compliance found at Form 11, available on our website at www.ca9.uscourts.gov under Forms.
- You may file a petition electronically via the appellate ECF system. No paper copies are required unless the Court orders otherwise. If you are a pro se litigant or an attorney exempted from using the appellate ECF system, file one original petition on paper. No additional paper copies are required unless the Court orders otherwise.
